90 Crimes of Illegal Hunting Caused MNT 770 Million in Environmental Damage

Over the past 5 years, 3,051 animals of 24 species have been illegally hunted, causing damage to the fauna. Hunting of very rare animals is prohibited for any purpose other than scientific research, which may only be carried out under a special permit issued by the central state administrative body.

Over the past 5 years, the prosecution service has supervised 4,105 crimes against the environment, issued indictments in 2,333 cases and referred them to court for resolution. Of these, illegal hunting accounts for 11 percent. Over the past 2 years, 90 crimes of illegal hunting caused MNT 770 million in environmental damage, and MNT 254.5 million of that damage was recovered at the investigation stage.
